

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

So far as the contents of the present volume are concerned, prefatory observations may be dispensed with, as anything which the editor deemed necessary to be said, in the way of explanation or comment, has been embodied in footnotes. With regard to future publications, however, an intimation has to be made of an addition to the series, which will be gratifying to those interested in Glasgow history.

The protocol books originally intended to be published down to the year 1600 were (1) William Hegait's three volumes embracing the period 1547-76; (2) Henry Gibson's three volumes 1555-76 and 1598-1603; (3) Archibald Hegait's three volumes 1581-1604; (4) John Ros's volume 1588-9; and (5) George Huchesone's volume 1587-1605. It has just been ascertained that there is preserved in the General Register House, Edinburgh, a protocol book relating to Glasgow properties, embracing the period 1530-9, and thus of a date considerably earlier than the oldest in the above list. The protocol book referred to is that of Michael Fleming, designated in his docquets "clerk in the diocese of Glasgow, notary public by apostolic and imperial authority." One or two of Fleming's instruments are printed in Liber Collegii Nostre Domine; but it is believed that the book itself has hitherto escaped the notice of local investigators. Arrangements are now being made with the view of obtaining abstracts of Fleming's protocols, and it is hoped that these, together with the remainder of William Hegait's protocols, will be comprised in the next printed volume.

t. 29.

¹The collegiate church of St. Mary and St. Anne, which occupied the site of the modern Tron Church, was endowed with various lands, tenements, and annualrents within the city. The magistrates of Glasgow were entrusted with the supervision of the structure and of the buildings belonging to the foundation; and they were also patrons of nine out of the first eleven prebends, viz., those of St. Anne, St. Mary the Virgin, St. James the Apostle, St. Roche, St. Kentigern, St. Nicholas, St. Andrew the Apostle, the Name of Jesus, and St. Martin. The twelfth prebend was that of the Three Choristers, and the magistrates had the right of choosing one of its possessors. It has been supposed that the building of the church was not completed before 1549, so that only a few years can have elapsed ere the celebration of the services provided for by the founder was declared illegal. Subsequent to the Reformation the revenues of the church appear to have been enjoyed by the surviving prebendaries. The transaction noticed in the text affords an illustration of the process under which the lands belonging to the foundation were disposed of. The first provost of the collegiate church was Christopher Boyd, vicar of Dalry, and its last, Archibald Crawford, rector of Eglesham, granter of the charter narrated in the text.

²The greater sacrist held the second prebend. One acre in Provanside and two acres in Deanside were included in his endowments. Liber Ecclesie Collegiate (Maitland Club) p. 25.

³As the boundaries are identical this appears to have been half an acre which belonged to the minor or lesser sacrist of the collegiate church. Ib., p. 45.

¹The designation "maister" (or magister, abbreviated in the abstracts to "Mr.") indicated that the person to whom it applied held the University degree of Master of Arts. "Maister George Buchquhennan" named in the text was apparently the great scholar and historian. Buchanan acquired the ground annual of 20 merks under a charter by William Conyghame of Craiganis in his favour, granted at Glasgow, on 8th November, 1561. On the following day John Galbrayth of Balgair, as attorney for and on behalf of "magistri Georgii Buchquhannan" (acting under letters of attorney issued in name of Queen Mary, at Edinburgh, on 22nd October), appeared at Yoker and took sasine on behalf of his principal. (MS. Protocol Book of Henry Gilman, vol. i., fol. 66). The witness, "George Galbraith, servatour to the saidis maister George," is probably the same George Galbrayth who appears as witness to an indenture between the abbot of Crossraguel and Mr. George Buchanan regarding the latter's pension from the benefice of the abbey, dated 24th April, 1568. (Crossraguel Charters, Ayrshire and Galloway Archaeological Association, vol. i., pp. 170-81). Protocol No. 100 narrates another transaction in which Buchanan was concerned, and in regard to which he seems to have attended in Glasgow personally.

¹By an act of the Scottish Parliament passed in the reign of James I. (1429, c. 18) the privilege "to brek seysing" is allowed to those who possessed a prior title, but the mode of procedure is not laid down. In the only other instances of annulling sasine, other than by decrees of the law courts, which have come under the editor's notice, a method similar to that narrated in the text was adopted. On 2nd March, 1479-80, a burghess of Stirling "broke, cassed and annulled" the sasine of a tenement in that burgh, "by the breaking of a dish and casting the same with earth and stone beyond the bounds of the tenement" (Stirling Charters, &c., i., p. 207). Again, at Peebles on 30th April, 1459, "Georg Wilyamson has brokyn seysing with thwa (two) dissis and fyr onder the dissis, sayand that seysing was fals and . . . thair auch nan to haf seysing of that land bot hym self." (Peebles Records, p. 131).

By the letters of foundation, granted by Sir Martin on 20th March, 1548-9, the magistrates and council were appointed to be patrons after his death. In that deed, also, the properties mentioned in the text are specified along with other endowments.—Liber Ecclesie Collegiate, pp. 38-42.

John Windigait (his son and apparent heir) and Elizabeth Stewarde, his spouse, and l.l.; but John died before he and his spouse obtained sasine; and King James V., willing that Elizabeth, the spouse, should sustain no loss thereby, gave her a charter, under his great seal, of the lands in liferent;² and as it now clearly appears that William Mwre is nearest heir of John Windigait, the Queen granted the lands to him by charter dated at Perth, 14 May, 1564.³ Sasine given in term of the precept. ¹Investiture by cognition and sasine was a mode of completing the title of an heir peculiar to burghage property. In most of the protocols narrating investiture of heirs a ward of court (i.e., a decree of the burgh court finding that the claimant was heir) was produced, along with the predecessors' titles, and these were held as sufficient warrant for the bailie giving sasine. The form of protocol used in such cases will be found in vol. I., pp. xx., xxi.

In cognitions the ward of court was dispensed with. The bailie proceeded to the ground with the claimant, there examined witnesses, if necessary, in regard to propinquity, and if satisfied on that point gave immediate entry and investiture. The instrument of cognition and sasine narrating these circumstances and specifying the deceased's title, afforded complete evidence in itself of the heir's propinquity, entry, and infeftment.

843. JOHN MARTYNE. Eodem die, 11 a.m.

David Lyndesay, bailie, gave sasine to John Martyne, as heir of q. John Martyne, citizen of Glasgow, his cousin, of an annualrent of 10 s. furth of the lands or tenements of Thomas Schyire, lying between the street on the north and the Common Green on other parts. Witnesses: John Stewarde of Bowhows, Mr. William Logane, John Fowlar and William Younge, serjeants.

¹Master James Hamilton was subdean in 1554 (see Protocol No. 211), and in 1556 and subsequent years he is designated in Registrum Magni Sigilli and elsewhere as bishop of Lismore (Argyle) and subdean of Glasgow. The subdeans of Glasgow had the parishes of Cadder and Monkland as their prebend. Subsequent to the Reformation, and after Hamilton ceased to hold office, the subdeanery was usually held by the minister either of Cadder or Monkland. David Cunynghame, minister of Cadder and Monkland from 1572 to 1577 (when he was made bishop of Aberdeen) succeeded Hamilton as subdean. Andrew Polwarth, the next minister, had a gift of the subdeanery from King James VI., on 17th March, 1578 (Fasti Ecclesie, iii., p. 49). In 1665 John Rosse, minister of Old Monkland, with consent of the dean and chapter of Glasgow, resigned the subdeanery in favour of Glasgow University (Munimenta Alme, i., p. 395). The earl of Kilmarnock about the same time resigned the rights he had in the subdeanery (Ib., p. 388), these rights having perhaps been originally acquired by his ancestor, Robert, lord

Boyde, from Patrick Walkinschaw, minister of Monkland, and confirmed by King Charles I. on 17th March, 1624 (R.M.S., viii., No. 604). Anna, duchess of Hamilton, had apparently some interest in the subdeanery which she resigned to the college, as is shown by crown charter of confirmation, dated 5th April, 1664 (Ib., pp. 390-3). By charter from King Charles II., in 1670, the subdeanery was united to the patrimony of the college, and there were bestowed on the Professor of Theology the honour and privileges of subdean in the chapter of Glasgow (Munimenta, i., pp. 401-11). A rental of the extensive lands and revenues thus acquired by the college will be found in Munimenta, i., p. 397. The Provanside and Deanside lands, referred to in the text, seem to have belonged to the subdeans from an early period, as John Stewart, subdean, disposed of an acre in Deanside in 1434. The portions of these lands vested in the crown in 1613 were conferred by King James VI. on the community of Glasgow, and incorporated with the burgh (Glasgow Charters, pt. ii., pp. 284-91).

¹The old Green of Glasgow extended eastward to the confluence of the Molindinar burn with the Clyde. On the eastward side of the burn lay the lands of Liningshaugh, adjoining these was Dassiegreen, and northward of the latter Peitbog, mentioned in the text. Kinclayth bordered on Peitbog and Dassie Green. All these lands have long since been incorporated with the new Green. Previous to 1588 Peitbog and Dassiegreen belonged to the community, but in that year were disposed of by the magistrates and council "for releiving of thair necessitie" (Glasgow Rec. i. pp. 124-6.) About seventy-five years later the town council apparently recognised the desirability of reacquiring the lands for the formation of the new Green; and in 1664 William Anderson, merchant in Glasgow, and Marion Mylne, his spouse, in consideration of "ane certane sowe of monye" paid to them, conveyed to the community "that particular piece of land or grund called the Peitbog and Dassie Grein, with all partes and pertinents belonging therto, lyand within the territory of the samyne burgh and neir therto, boundit betuix the Water of Clyd on south, the lands called Kinclaith and wthers on the north and the lands of Liningshauch on the west partes." The lands thus acquired were, in 1666, set on a nineteen years' lease to Robert Rae, merchant, owner of adjoining lands on the east called Provosthaugh. One of the provisions of the tack is interesting as showing the uses to which this part of the new Green was put by the inhabitants: "With this expres conditionne and provisione allwayes that it sall be leasume to the burgessis, inhabitantis of this burgh, who sall tak and fish salmond be thair cobillis in the water thairabouts, to dry thair netes on the saidis lands of Peitbog as they ar now and hes bein in use, they paying to the said Robert Rae or his subtenentes as they have bein in use, heirtofore, to pay to Johne Louk, possessor of the saids landes." (Inventory of City Writs, i. b. 37.) Dass, according to one of the interpretations in Jamieson's Scottish Dictionary, signifies a landing place, and Dassiegreen may thus have derived its name on account of the salmon fishers using it for beaching their boats.

¹Sir John Stewart of Minto, by the transactions narrated in the three preceding protocols, and in others which follow, disposed of portions of the lands acquired by him from the collegiate church of St. Mary as set forth in Nos. 743 and 744. Sir John's ancestors, who took their territorial designation from Minto, in Roxburghshire, and who also owned lands in Lanarkshire and Renfrewshire, were closely connected with Glasgow, and took a share in the administration of its municipal affairs. John Stewart, "the first provost that was in the cite of Glasgow" (i.e., 1464. Charters, I., p. xxxiv.; ii., p. 62), was brother of Sir William Stewart, who acquired Minto in 1420. Sir Thomas Stewart (son of Sir William), who acquired Arthurs estate in Renfrewshire by marriage, was provost of Glasgow in 1501 and each of his successors in the title for three generations in the direct line, held that office at one time or another. Sir John Stewart named in the text (great grandson of Sir Thomas) may not have been born at the date of the protocol, but he seems to have been elected or perhaps re-elected, at Michaelmas following (see No. 882). 920. JONET KING AND JOHN BURNE. 28 April, 1567, 7 a.m.

Jonet King produced a charter whereby John Stewart of Mynto, knight, granted to her in liferent and to John Burne and his heirs, heritably, the merk land of old extent of Corshill, lying in the parish of Govan and shire of Ranfrew.¹ The charter was subscribed and sealed at Glasgow on 27 April,

¹The five merk lands of Polmadie and Corshill had been bestowed upon the collegiate church of Dumbarton about the year 1450. Subsequent to the Reformation the provost of the collegiate church, with consent of the earl of Lennox, the patron, disposed of the lands to Sir John Stewart of Minto, by a feu charter, dated 4th November, 1564. In a paper read by the late Mr. A. M. Scott to the Glasgow Archaeological Society, on 17th January, 1889 (Transactions, vol. i. pp. 517-33) the question as to the parish in which Corshill lands were situated was discussed. Mr. Scott had not discovered any express authority of an early date bearing on the point; and it seems that so late as 1813, in a question of minister's stipend, it was judicially held that the lands were in Cathcart parish. The protocol, it will be observed, states that they were in the parish of Govan. In 1892, the lands of Crosshill and Polmadie were included in those portions transferred from Renfrewshire to the county of Lanark by order of the Boundary Commissioners, under the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889. The parochial arrangements of the lands were not interfered with.

duty of four merks was stipulated to be paid by the grantees, and it was provided that if the Friars should be restored they should regain possession of the yards, but the tenement was to remain with Graham for payment of a yearly feu duty of three merks. By the charter of kirk-livings obtained from Queen Mary, on 16th March, 1566-7 (Glasgow Charters, ii. pp. 131-7), the place, orchards, and other property of the Blackfriars, were conveyed to the magistrates and community of Glasgow, and it was declared that all alienations of such property by the friars, since the change of religion, should be rescinded and annulled. It was no doubt with the view of neutralising the effect, on Graham's acquisition, of the latter charter that in the following month he procured the crown confirmation noticed in the text. Ultimately, however, the grant of 1560 had to be relinquished. In 1572-3 the city transferred the kirk-livings to the college authorities (Id. pp. 149-82), who thereupon instituted an action before the lords of council and session for reduction of Graham's title. Judgment of the court was pronounced on 7 June, 1573, setting aside the grant of 1560; and on 27 February following Graham executed in favour of the college a formal surrender of the property, there described as "the great yaird sumtyme pertening to the Freiris Predicatoris of Glasgw, with the small yairdis adjacent thairto, as the West Freir Yarde, the Colhowse, and Closter Knot, the Paradyoe Yairdis uver and neather, with the remanent small yairdis adjacent thairto." See Preface to Munimenta Fratrum Predicatorum (pp. lxlii-lxvii) and authorities there cited. It appears from a complaint by the principal and masters of the college to the privy council, on 5th March, 1579-80, concerning fraudulent abstraction of the rents and profits of the kirk-livings that the practice of churchmen disposing of their benefices had not even then ceased (Privy Council Register iii. p. 274).

Sir Bartholomew Simpsoun, vicar of the choir of the great metropolitan church of Glasgow (insignis ecclesie metropolitane Glasguensis), sold to Hugh earl of Glasgow, and Margaret Ralstoun, his spouse, of an adjoining acre of land, which was subsequently acquired by the community as part of the new Green. This charter is preserved among the Green title deeds, and has the three seals described in No. 967 appended. The latter acre is described as lying in the Milhill, near the city of Glasgow, and occupied by Agnes Schaw (spouse of the late William Schaw, burgess of the city, and mother of the said Margaret) between the lands of Thomas Mure on the south, the burn of Cumlachie on the west, the lands of David Mathe on the east and the loyn and Sanct Mungois tre on the north. The feu-duty was £2 1s. Sir John Mwne, preceptor; James Balfour, dean and vicar general of Glasgow; James Hamiltoun, sub-dean; and other members of the chapter append their signatures. The feu-duty of £2 1s. was made up of 40s., used and wont, and 1s. in augmentation of rental. The lands of St. Nicholas Hospital seem to have been possessed by rentallers, and converted into feu holdings, thus following the same course as was adopted with regard to lands belonging to the bishops. In the present case Agnes Schaw was the rentaller, and her liferent right was reserved in the charter.

964. WILLIAM LEICHTBODYE AND SPOUSE. 26 February, 1567-8, 11 a.m.

William Leichtbodye, citizen of Glasgow, resigned in favour of himself and Elizabeth Pawtoun, his spouse, a tenement of land, with kiln, houses,

¹Quintin Kennedy, the learned abbot of Crossraguell, who had a famous disputation with John Knox, continued in possession of the abbacy till his death, on 22nd August, 1564. On 9th October thereafter George Buchanan got from the privy council the gift of a pension of £500 from the abbey lands, but he seems to have had difficulty in collecting it. In July, 1565, Allan Stewart, brother of James Stewart, laird of Cardonald, obtained a gift of the abbacy, and came to an arrangement with Buchanan about his pension. The earl of Cassillis, in 1566, got from the King and Queen a lease of the abbacy which virtually annulled Stewart's gift and caused disputes between the rivals, but does not seem to have stayed the alienation by Stewart of the landed possessions of the abbey. Allan Stewart's charter to John Fullertoun of the 40s. lands of Kirkoswald and 13s. 4d. land of Preistisland, in the baillary of Carrik, dated 12th February, 1567, was confirmed by King James VI. on 1st December, 1590 (Registrum Magni Sigilli, v. ¹See foot note to No. 966.

²*Insula de Roisneth*.—Sir Walter Scott had probably come across this description in title deeds, as in the "Heart of Midlothian," the peninsula of Rosneath is assumed to be an island grouped with but described as less in size than Arran and the Cumbræes. In the earliest crown charter of the lands which has been traced—that of King Robert II. confirming a grant by the countess of Meneteth to John of Drummond—the estate is described as the "lands of Rosneath, with the pertinents, in the earldom of Lennox and shire of Dunbarton" (Registrum Magni Sigilli, i. p. 113, No. 3). A similar description is contained in the charter by King James III. to Sir John Culquhoun of Lusse in 1473 (Ib. ii. No. 1152). Colin earl of Ergile got from James IV. in 1489-90 a grant of "the lands of Rosneath in the shire of Dunbartane" (Ib. No. 1918); and by a charter, dated 24th April, 1509, the same King confirmed the lands to Archibald earl of Ergile and incorporated them into the free barony of Rosneath (Ib. No. 3334). The earliest reference in the Great Seal Register to Rosneath as an island is contained in a confirmation by Queen Mary to Gilbert M'Kynne, in August, 1548, of the lands of Knokdorrie-M'Kynne, which are described as lying "in insula de Rosneath" (Ib. iv. No. 245). On 2nd December, 1558, King Francis and Queen Mary confirmed a charter by the earl of Argyle to the Lord of Lorne of the lands of the island of Rosneath (terras insule de Rosneath) with castle, mills, &c. (Ib. No. 1315). The lands "in insula de Rosneath" mentioned in the text were confirmed to James Campbell of Ardkinlas and spouse by crown charter, dated 24th March, 1572-3 (Ib. No. 2132).

¹In a record such as this direct information regarding public current events, however important, can scarcely be looked for. Between 30th April, the date of the previous protocol and 27th June, the date of this one, the country had passed through a momentous crisis in its history. Queen Mary's escape from Lochleven on 2nd, and her defeat at Langaide on 13th May, with the intervening and succeeding commotions, particularly in Glasgow and its neighbourhood, must have caused great disorganisation. The testimony borne by the protocol book on the subject consists in its showing a significant interruption in the settlement of those transactions which it was the province of the notary to chronicle.
